

WANAMAKER.

Wanamaker is still making fresh explanations regarding his connections with the Keystone Bank.

Wanamaker is one of the most sanctimonious old humbugs brought to the surface by the present administration.

He is a shrewd money maker, cloaking his grabbing propensities under the cloak of offensive Sunday school Pecksniffism.

When in San Francisco he told everybody he met, his ideas on the Post Office site, and had told a different tale to each.

In other words he was a blundering old liar.

Whenever he met a married man he had one same set speech when saying good by. "It is the regret of my life and ever will be that my wife did not come out here that she might have made the acquaintance of your brilliant wife."

He gave over twenty people the same game of bosh and two of them had no wives.

People who are fond of noting coincidences will observe that Hannibal Hamlin died on the Fourth of July, 1891, and will recall the fact that Presidents Jefferson and John Adams died on the same day, July 4th, 1826, the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and President Monroe on July 4th, 1831. There is no other date in the year which groups together the deaths of so many men prominent in the history of the nation which takes its date from the Fourth of July.

In the newspaper row over Lincoln and Hamlin, between Nicolay and McClure, the latter resorts to a good deal of newspaper abuse but Nicolay produces documentary evidence in Lincoln's own handwriting that McClure will find hard to answer.

Women are allowed to vote in Australia. This piece of information will doubtless have a tendency to check the spread of the Australian system in this country.

An exchange says American people are the greatest newspaper readers in the world, but in Carson they are the greatest newspaper borrowers.

Reminded of a Story.

The following is from the Enterprise. Mrs. M. (on street)—"Willie, come in; it's 8 o'clock. Come, Jennie; Freddie! James! J. P.!!!"

Mr. E. (a neighbor passing by and feeling funny)—"Why don't you shut the gate and count them as they come in?"

Mrs. M.—"If I had you instead of my old man, I wouldn't be standing out here calling at children at all."

The above reminds us of one of John Kittrell's stories.

He said he was once on a train where a woman with a poodle dog in her lap was loudly abusing Grover Cleveland because of the Maria Halpin affair. When finally an Irishwoman in the next seat remarked, "If your husband was as good a man as Grover Cleveland you wouldn't be packing poodle dogs in your lap."

In a few minutes the laughter in the car almost shook it off the track.

Filthy Irish Politics.

London July 11.—The Carlow election has not allayed any of the bitterness between the two Irish factions. It is said that John Clancy, the sub-Sheriff of Dublin has threatened to punish Healy for his foul abuse of a woman (Meaning Mrs. Parnell.) An encounter between the two is likely. Healy now alludes to Mrs. Parnell as Kittie O'Parnell, and he seldom mentions Parnell without some vulgar allusion to his wife. The Parnellites say there is a story regarding Healy's abuse of Mrs. Parnell which will make a sensation if ever made public.

The Hearst estate foots up nearly nine millions.
